Diablo Canyon Power Plant: Clean, reliable energy for the next generation

To best serve our customers' future energy needs and to ensure the continued availability of clean, low-cost electricity to our customers, PG&E has asked the U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) to extend the operating licenses of both units at Diablo Canyon for an additional 20 years. As many of you may know, the process to extend the operating licenses will take several years. During that time frame, the NRC will conduct a comprehensive safety and environmental review, which will include site visits and ample opportunities for the public to ask questions and to share comments with the NRC.

NRC has already conducted two public meetings in San Luis Obispo. The first, on February 9, was to discuss the license extension process itself; the second was held on March 3, to discuss the environmental impacts of the plant. PG&E encourages you to attend upcoming NRC public meetings. To inform you as to what's going on, we have set up a Web site (www.DiabloCanyonPGE.com) to provide current information about the process as well as a schedule of upcoming events.

At PG&E, we support this open, transparent and thorough process. We are confident that our strong operating history and commitment to safety will show that Diablo Canyon should continue to be a major contributor to our customers' clean energy supplies for years to come.

Diablo Canyon Power Plant: Clean, reliable energy for the next generation

Every employee at Diablo Canyon—past and present—should be proud of the work we have accomplished over the last 25 years. Thanks to our strong safety culture and unwavering commitment to operational excellence, Diablo Canyon has given the people of Northern and Central California a safe, reliable source of clean and affordable power and contributed substantially to the economic vitality of San Luis Obispo County.

The plant produces enough electricity to serve the needs of nearly 3 million homes with almost zero greenhouse gas emissions. Operating Diablo Canyon avoids 7.8 million tons per year of greenhouse gas emissions that would otherwise be produced by conventional fossil fuel generation. In fact, without Diablo Canyon's clean, affordable and reliable baseload power, it would be virtually impossible for California to lower its greenhouse gas emissions to 1990 levels by 2020 while supplying enough electricity to power the state's economy.

Diablo Canyon is also a vital economic engine for the Central Coast of California. As the largest private employer in San Luis Obispo County, with almost 1,200 highly skilled, highly trained workers, and as a major purchaser of goods and services, Diablo Canyon invests millions of dollars back into the local and state economies. Tax dollars from the plant fund municipalities, schools and other crucial public services. In addition to charitable donations from the company, our employees—and many retirees, too—have spent thousands of hours volunteering at worthy community organizations.

Improved company contributions for retiree medical coverage

Starting January 1, 2011, all current PG&E retirees enrolled in PG&E-sponsored retiree medical coverage will enjoy a higher limit on company contributions toward medical plan premiums. The higher limits will help ease medical inflation for retirees and allow for many years of potential increases in the amount PG&E contributes toward retiree medical premiums.

The new contribution limits will apply to both non-Medicare and Medicare plans. Maximum contributions will be available for retirees with 25 or more years of service and for retirees who have been grandfathered to receive the maximum contributions. Retirees with less service will receive prorated contributions.

Higher contribution limits for non-Medicare coverage

Each year, PG&E will contribute a dollar amount equivalent to 65 percent of the cost of Network Access Plan premiums. That dollar amount will apply to any other medical plan you may elect instead of the Network Access Plan. However, if you elect a less expensive plan, the most PG&E will contribute is 72 percent of that plan's premium cost. Company contributions will be capped in the future when annual PG&E contributions reach the new limit of:

- $13,000 per enrolled retiree and $13,000 per enrolled spouse or registered domestic partner ($26,000 per non-Medicare couple)
- $13,000 total for enrolled non-Medicare dependent children

Higher contribution limits for Medicare coverage

Medicare-eligible retirees and dependents will receive a base monthly contribution that will increase annually by the average cost increase of all PG&E Medicare plans. If these higher limits were in effect today, the base monthly contribution for 2010 would be $95. In 2011, when the higher limits take effect, the actual base monthly contribution will be greater than $95, reflecting the average cost increase of all PG&E Medicare plans from 2010 to 2011.

Company contributions will be capped in the future when annual PG&E contributions reach the new limit of:

- $2,500 per enrolled retiree and $2,500 per enrolled spouse or registered domestic partner ($5,000 per Medicare-eligible couple)
- $2,500 total for enrolled Medicare-eligible dependent children

Separate contribution limits for non-Medicare and Medicare plans

PG&E will provide separate contribution limits for retirees, spouses/registered domestic partners and dependent children based on Medicare status. For a Medicare retiree with a non-Medicare spouse/registered domestic partner and non-Medicare dependent children, the highest annual contribution limit will be:

- Medicare retiree—up to $2,500 per year, plus
- Non-Medicare spouse/registered domestic partner—up to $13,000 per year, plus
- Non-Medicare children—up to a total of $13,000 per year

Effective June 1, 2010—improved contributions for pre-1994 retirees

PG&E employees who retired before 1994 and their Medicare-eligible spouses/registered domestic partners each will receive an additional $40 per month toward their PG&E-sponsored medical plan premium ($80 per Medicare-eligible couple). This is in addition to the new contribution limits for Medicare coverage.

To receive the extra $40, retirees and spouses/registered domestic partners must be enrolled in a PG&E-sponsored retiree medical plan and in Medicare Parts A and B. This change will be reflected in the June 1 pension check.

Looking ahead

PG&E's priority, for both the company's active employees and those now retired, is to ensure access to quality medical coverage. While medical inflation remains a challenge for everyone, the company recognizes that it is especially difficult for PG&E retirees, many of whom are living on fixed incomes after dedicating years of service to PG&E and its customers. The improved contribution limits are designed to help ease medical inflation for retirees.

Hand in hand with PG&E's commitment to providing access to quality medical care is the need to understand how the recently passed health care legislation may affect PG&E medical coverage. Two large, complex bills were signed into law: The Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act and the Health Care and Education Reconciliation Act of 2010. We do not yet know how this legislation will affect our plans, but we are carefully analyzing it and will provide updates in the coming months.

This fall, you will receive a detailed enrollment kit summarizing your benefit options and premium rates for 2011. Retirees who are eligible for PG&E-sponsored medical plan coverage but are not currently enrolled must contact the HR Service Center by September 1, 2010, to request an enrollment kit.
